MAILING AND FULFILMENT SERVICE 2017

Due to the increased rates being applied to large item postage by the Royal Mail, Golf Galleries will again be offering a mailing and fulfilment service to customers at greatly reduced rates.

POSTING AND PACKING THE COMPLETE ORDER:

You provide GGL with address labels for client recipients and GGL pack and post the calendars on your behalf.

Information will be handled with the utmost respect and security, and can be supplied electronically for GGL to produce the mailing labels. If you prefer to supply hard copy labels then we will apply these at our production facility on your behalf.

All items are sent via Royal Mail account and can be easily traced by our staff and if required, a forwarding address applied to ensure undelivered items are returned to you or to GGL for redirection.

WALL CALENDARS

£ 3.40 (PLUS VAT) FOR FIRST CLASS POST

£ 2.75 (PLUS VAT) FOR SECOND CLASS POST

These postage charges are over and above the price of the calendar.

Where you would prefer some calendars to be posted directly to your client recipients by GGL and the balance delivered in bulk to your office, there will be an additional delivery charge of £40.

DONALD FORD

SCOTLAND'S PHOTOGRAPHER

Donald Ford was born in Linlithgow in 1944 into a sporting family. His father, a veterinary surgeon, won three Scottish caps at cricket, his elder brother Malcolm won nineteen (both were also talented football players) while his mother boasted a Ladies' Championship victory at Linlithgow Golf Club. It was football which took priority for Donald and in 1964, while halfway through a five year indenture to a firm of Edinburgh Chartered Accountants, he signed for Hearts, playing as an amateur until 1968 when, having passed his CA finals, he signed professional forms with the club.

He subsequently enjoyed a further seven seasons at Tynecastle, winning three League caps and three full Scottish caps to add to nine amateur caps and was a member of the Scotland World Cup squad at the finals in 1974. A knee injury brought his football career to an end in 1976. His cricketing career with West Lothian County blossomed however, and in 1980, during his third year as captain of the club, he was included in Scotland's first ever Benson & Hedges squad.

Professionally, he continued to practise as an accountant in the business he had established in Linlithgow in 1968, and moved premises to Bathgate in the late 1980s. However, he sold his practice in 1991.

With enormous support from his wife Carol and members of the family, he then embarked on a new career in Scottish landscape photography. A turning point came in 1994, when he and Carol bought an old property in South Queensferry and opened the Donald Ford Gallery. He began publishing his work and his first Scottish calendar for 1996 went on sale with all 4,500 copies selling out.

Since then, several large books of both his landscape and golf photography have been published, many of which have gone all over the world.

His work is widely distributed to both private and corporate sources and the annual publications of his Scottish golf course photography, in particular, are now acknowledged as the finest available. He has gained recognition as one of Scotland's outstanding photographers of golf courses, including the more modest as well as the household names. Many of his photographs feature in magazines, club brochures, annual handbooks on Scottish Golf, and of course, in Donald's own publications.

His strength of composition and obvious love of Scotland' kaleidoscopic characteristics are major features of his photography. Never better are they evidenced than in some wonderful shots of early morning light on many of Scotland's finest links, from his favourite haunts amidst the unique landscape of Assynt, or aboard any of the Hebridean Isles - Inner and Outer - whose fantastic lightscapes turn the west coast into a photographer's dream.
